Surprise Rome Intimation

FLOODS IN DROUGHT AREA

FRESH AFFLICTIONS IN PRAIRIE STATES

HEAVY DAMAGE IN GALES

New York, June 8.
Weather extremes in a new form have caused acute distress in the North-Western prairie States, where heavy losses have been caused by serious flooding.

Violent windstorms and torrential rain have brought fresh afflictions on the States, which until a few days ago were absolutely parched by the drought. In Yankton, South Dakota, a man was killed and several others were injured in a furious gale, which did widespread damage, uprooting trees and toppling over windmills and other buildings.

From Sioux City, Iowa, it is learned that the Floyd River has burst its banks and flooded a huge area a mile wide on either side of the river.

Scores of families have been forced to flee from their homes.—Reuter.

A. J. Lacey, the British challenger in the American Open Golf Championship at Ardmore, fell behind in the race to-day, failing to reproduce the brilliant golf that carried him to the forefront yesterday.

The only one of the three leaders who managed to keep up to the high standard set on the first day was Booby Cruikshank, who turned in another 71 and led the field by three strokes at the close of the day. Gene Sarazen is close on his heels. He aggregated 72 to-day, one stroke better than on the first day. The leaders follow:

WORLD RECORD BILLIARDS BREAK

HOW MCCONACHY BEAT LINDRUM

(Special to "Telegraph")
By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received June 8, 6.48 a.m.

Brisbane, June 8.
Clark McConachy, the well-known New Zealand billiards player, set a new world break record to-day when playing Walter Lindrum, the world champion. McConachy compiled a total of 1,927 points, the world's highest since the new baulk-line rule was introduced.

The break enabled him to defeat Lindrum in 1,908 points, in the first of three weekly billiards contests. Lindrum led by 43 at the commencement of the last day's play, but McConachy's break robbed him of a look-in.—Reuter.

TWO-DAY TALK ENVISAGED

GERMANY AND THE LEAGUE

DECISION MAY BE INFLUENCED

(Special to "Telegraph")

(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received June 8, 5.25 a.m.)

London, June 9.
The greatest interest has been aroused by a surprise announcement from Rome that Herr Hitler, the Nazi leader, is proceeding to Italy at the invitation of Signor Mussolini.

It is learned from reliable sources that the meeting between the two Fascist leaders, their first official association, will occur at Venice on Monday, and that Herr Hitler will continue his conversations with Signor Mussolini on Tuesday.

Herr Hitler is flying to Venice. PRELUDE TO RETURN?

The diplomatic corps in Rome believe that the Hitler-Mussolini meeting is connected with the return of Germany to the League of Nations, as well as Signor Mussolini's final effort to save the Disarmament Conference.

It is reported from Geneva that the General Commission adopted the Davis compromise resolution and will meet again on Monday afternoon to constitute the Committee that are envisaged in the resolution.

WIDE GULF.

The resolution shows a surface agreement regarding the future programme of the Conference, but it hides a wide gulf between the different British, French, German and Italian views on fundamental problems.

It remains to be seen if the Franco-Russian rapprochement will continue to embitter Anglo-French relations to such an extent as to throw difficulties in the way of Germany's return to Geneva.

MONDAY'S BATTLE.

It is believed that the General Commission on Monday will fight warmly over the constitution of the various committees to be set up, after which the Conference is expected to adjourn quietly until at least, October, unless Germany suddenly announces her intention of returning.

Observers remark upon the fact that the Japanese have not participated in the discussions.

NEW ATMOSPHERE.

Mr. Norman Davis formally accepted the resolution "as a distinct contribution to the peace of Europe. It has not solved the entire question of disarmament, but it has changed the atmosphere of the Conference from one of despair to real hope."—United Press.

DEADLOCK AT END.

London, June 8.
The deadlock at Geneva has been resolved, and the acceptance by the Disarmament Conference General Commission this afternoon of a resolution reasserting the necessity for security of a general disarmament convention, and outlining an immediate programme of work to that end, marks a definite advance which has caused keen satisfaction in official circles in London.

As the result of prolonged consultations between the British, French and United States delegations last night, Monsieur Barthou accepted modifications of the draft resolution which he submitted on the 6th inst. and in its

MR. CHURCHILL'S MARE'S-NEST

SIR S. HOARE AND LORD DERBY EXONERATED

POLITICAL SENSATION FIZZLES OUT

(SPECIAL TO "TELEGRAPH")

(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received, June 9, 8.47 a.m.)

London, June 8.

The political mare's-nest raised by Mr. Winston Churchill in the House of Commons in April last when, alleging breach of privilege by Sir Samuel Hoare (Secretary of State for India) and Lord Derby, both members of the Joint Select Committee on India, he accused them of procuring an alteration of the evidence submitted by the Manchester Chamber of Commerce, has been laid by the Committee of investigation.

Both Sir Samuel Hoare and Lord Derby are completely exonerated of the charges of influencing the evidence submitted to the Committee engaged in framing the new constitution for India.

MANCHESTER MEMORANDUM ON INDIA

The Committee of Privileges today issued a twenty-one page report exhaustively dealing with the whole circumstances, the ultimate finding being that neither Lord Derby nor Sir Samuel Hoare had committed any breach of privilege. "There is not even any allegation of suspicion or of corruption or of intimidation on an appeal direct or indirect to greed or fear."

The exoneration is a judgment unanimously reached by the committee which investigated Mr. Lord Derby's complaint. Mr. Churchill alleged that during the month of May 1933 the India section of the Manchester Chamber of Commerce were engaged in preparing their evidence for the Joint Select Committee which is now sitting.

100 COPIES OF EVIDENCE

"As soon as the forecast and outline of this evidence reached the Secretary of State for India, Sir Samuel Hoare, sharp differences of opinion arose between him and the then president of the Chamber of Commerce, Mr. Richard Bond, and the Secretary of State set himself to prevent the presentation of the Lancashire evidence in the form which those most concerned in the welfare of the cotton industry thought necessary."

"In the middle of June 1933 the India section of the Manchester Chamber of Commerce completed their evidence for the Joint Select Committee. "The evidence was printed and 100 copies were duly forwarded to the secretary of the Joint Select Committee, by whom they were formally received. "It was then expected that the hearing of the evidence would take place on June 30. Early and full information of the character of the evidence, if not indeed an advanced copy of the actual text, reached the Secretary of State for India."

DERBY DINNER.

"Thereafter a dinner was held in London, on June 27, at Lord Derby's house, to which the principal members of the India section of the Manchester Chamber of Commerce were invited by Lord Derby."

"The Secretary of State for India and two Ministers of the Crown were present. "This was the beginning of a long series of negotiations, amounting to pressure upon the Manchester Chamber of Commerce, and recognised as pressure by them.

"This body was chiefly represented by Mr. Barlow (now Sir Thomas Barlow), former president of the Chamber, and by Mr. F. Rodier, the chairman of the India section."

"The object of the pressure was to procure a fundamental alteration in evidence which had already been officially tendered to the Secretary of the Joint Select Committee, and was in his possession."

EVIDENCE WITHDRAWN.

"To conform with this, the hearing of the evidence was put off from June 30 and did not in fact take place until November 4, 1933."

"I base the statement that pressure was applied, and the use of the word 'pressure,' on the terms of a conclusion reached by the India section of the Manchester Chamber of Commerce of July 28 last year."

"The members agreed unanimously that pressure might be brought on the Chamber to revise its evidence as then agreed and tendered, and that unless a new situation arose there should be no suggestion of making changes in the nature of the Chamber's recommendation."

"Now this pressure, I assert, came primarily from the Secretary of State through all the channels which His Majesty's Government and he personally could command. "In particular, Lord Derby, a leading member of the Joint Select Committee, visited Manchester in September, interviewed members of the Chamber of Commerce, and sought to persuade them to alter their evidence."

"Eventually the Manchester Chamber of Commerce were induced to withdraw their formally presented evidence from the possession of the Secretary of the Joint Select Committee."

MEDIAEVAL PENALTIES.

Sir Samuel Hoare said that at the June dinner their whole talk was about the position between Lancashire and India, and nothing was said at the dinner about the evidence or memorandum which the chamber of commerce was intending to put in."

He was delighted that this inquiry should take place. There was nothing he desired more than a detailed impartial investigation (Continued on Page 5.)

ROOSEVELT ATTACK FAILS

A.F.L. REPORT

Washington, June 8.
Despite the enormous sums poured by the Federal Government into relief works and the gigantic effort by N.R.A. to achieve reabsorption, the attempt to reduce unemployment in the United States substantially has fallen far short of expectations.

Very little progress has been made up to now in overcoming unemployment, declares that June Review of the American Federation of Labour.

The A. F. L. points out that the army of unemployed which grew from 3,188,000 in April 1930, to 13,250,000 in April 1933, had been reduced only to 10,016,000 in April, 1934.

Unemployment is now back at the 1932 level and there is little hope of further gains, on the position until next autumn at the earliest.—Reuter.

Too Little Praise

By Olive Roberts Barton

Probably no word in the language is more overworked and misused to-day than "complex."

It is given to every prejudice and phobia under the sun, because it has intrigued the imagination and set the country by the ears.

Now it is not an easy word to understand. Indeed so obscure and bewildering a process is it, that even the most advanced analysts of mind mysteries, find many of the real truths eluding them.

Complex Defined

The reason for continued search is to find causes, more than results. Results are only too well known. The forms of insanity, neurasthenia and abnormal conduct, to say nothing of sheer mental unhappiness are the greatest misfortune of the modern world. And mind specialists all over the world are agreed that the trouble begins in childhood and early youth.

Complex. What is it? One can only speak generally.

The mind is divided into certain emotional areas, let us say. In one is the "ego" state, or self-interest; in another the "society" attitude or interest in the world; another contains sex interest. Others may concern passions for hobbies, for possession, or for certain work, etc. Each of these is divided and subdivided but all are coloured by one thing—deep interest or emotion.

Nature has made it so. Natural lodging in the brain is given them. And the brain provides the means of growth. They are normally fed by certain things—the stimuli of experience. "Ego" or self-interest is fed by a hundred things—praise, credit, satisfaction in doing, winning a race, condemnation—any and everything is needed to develop it to its full growth and satisfaction at maturity.

All emotional areas develop by the same system, each being perfected through the channels of normal or happy experience.

If the channel is stopped by something, and both outlet and inlet are shut off, what happens? Ordinarily we would think that was the end of it. Sometimes it is and we say that normal development is "arrested." But usually it is not the case. The channel merely twists and turns and seeks a new dumping ground in the "subconscious." The process of repression produces a warped attitude called a "repressed complex."

Effect of "Shock"

The stoppage is not always sudden. Repeated unhappy experiences may result in a twist, or it can be caused by a single unhappy one, such as shock.

The child may forget the experience (or group of experiences), and so may every one else. Then, years later, it may make itself known by over-emotional or unhappy conduct, or by more or less serious perversions.

"Inferiority" is a complex. The right experiences that feed self-esteem or "ego" have been interrupted by criticism, or teasing, or shame, or by so-called failure often repeated; also by not getting praise, or credit where they are due.

"Mental" complex is merely the name given by many psychologists to the normal groups of emotional interest. They are natural and not abnormal. "Work complex," "hobby complex" are common terms.

It is the "repressed complex" of any sort that is unfortunate.

Linen, cotton print, tub silk or voile are alternate materials for the charming house frock pictured here. The designs are in eight sizes: 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, 50 and 52. Size 46 requires 3 5-8 yards of 36 inch material, plus 5 1-4 yards of 1 1-2 inch bias binding.

PRACTICAL RECIPES

Amber Pudding

Half a pound of suet, ½ lb. sugar, ½ lb. breadcrumbs, 3 eggs, 3 oz. citron and lemon peel, 2 tablespoonfuls of marmalade.

Put all the ingredients into a bowl, except the eggs, the suet being finely chopped. Beat in the yolks of the eggs, and lastly, the whites, which have been whipped to a stiff froth. Pour into a buttered mould, and steam for four hours. Serve with milled sauce.

To make the milled sauce, take 2 eggs, sugar to taste, a wineglassful of sherry. Whisk all together in a little pan over the fire, without boiling.

Mock Pate de foie Gras

A clove of garlic, some fat bacon, 3 shallots, ½ lb. calf's liver, ¼ lb. cold cooked veal; salt and white pepper to season, and a little butter.

First rub the frying pan over with a clove of garlic; melt a quantity of bacon fat in it, and fry the shallots, chopped finely, and the calf's liver cut in dice. When done, pound all, including the bacon fat, in a mortar, with the finely-chopped veal. Then season, mix well, press into jars, and cover with the melted butter.

Golden Pudding

A batter made with 3 tablespoonfuls of flour, 3 eggs, and 3 tablespoonfuls of milk, 1 tablespoonful of golden syrup.

Grease a mould, or basin, pour in the golden syrup, then add the well-beaten batter. Cover with

GLORIFYING YOURSELF.

Keep Your Waistline Supple!

By Alicia Hart

If you want to retain a graceful, youthful figure—keep that waistline supple!

Consider how a child walks, runs and sits. His waistline is as flexible as a wide rubber band.

It's never too late to begin exercising to attain this suppleness and its companion qualities, grace and poise. For poise does come from within and an awkward body is not conducive to gracious bearing. So do your exercise with a double purpose in mind. First, to be limber and supple. Second, to build health and poise. Let's begin with stretching and bending.

When you have brushed your teeth and taken two full glasses of warm water, stand before an open window and stretch. Raise your hands upward, trying to touch the ceiling and feeling your torso being pulled up, up, up. Relax after each stretch and repeat at least five times. Then begin bending.

Keeping your knees stiff, swing your hands downward to the floor. You won't be able to touch it the first morning but after a week, you will. Do it ten times.

buttered paper, and steam for 3 hours. Turn out, reversed, on to a hot dish, and the syrup will trickle down over the pudding, covering it with a golden sauce.

CHAPTER XXI

The summer waned all too swiftly. Blue days, golden days there were in August, when Gypsy flung her arms aloft for sheer joy in living; when there was not a cloud in the sky; when the borders blazed with phlox and larkspur and zinnias; when the nights were drenched with dew and you awakened to cool, scented, blowy mornings.

There never was, such a summer. The Morells came over from Blue Hills in the shabby car and there were picnics on the grass under the laden apple trees. Steaks were broiled over the crude outdoor oven. Tom rushed home early, exulting in the luxury of his own vine and fig tree, and there were two wonderful weeks when he was home altogether. "Of course, it isn't a real vacation," Gypsy sighed, wistful more for him than for herself. "But it's fun anyway."

The corn ripened under the sun along the highways. The fruit hung heavy on the trees. Hay was stacked in golden tents in the fields. And on one gorgeous day in late September Gypsy's child was born. She had been rushed to the city hospital the night before. For 10 long hours she had writhed in pain, digging her nails into her flesh, trying to stifle the cries that were wrung from her. At 8 o'clock the baby's wail sounded and the watching young husband, pacing the corridor outside, sagged against the distended walls in an agony of relief.

"It's over, it's over," he whispered. When they allowed him in to see her an hour later she was lying white and seemingly broken in the narrow bed. Only her eyes were alive, moving natively in her tanned young face.

"Tommy, oh, darling! Tears of weakness ran down her cheeks and his own eyes watered in sympathy.

"Was it so terrible, dearest?" He had her hands in his. His eyes were roving anxiously over her dear, familiar features.

She shut her eyes, on a long sigh. "Let you see the baby?"

"Not yet, honey. The nurse said—"

A figure in striped and crackling cambric gilded in. "Time's up, Mr. Weaver. This young lady must get some sleep." And he had to go, after a kiss and a whispered admonition.

"She's all right. She's perfectly fine," the doctor told him. "She came through splendidly." But Tom was not convinced. His office mates railed him robustly on his grimace. "As if they knew what it was all about," the poor fellow thought witheringly, wincing to think of the long night and Gypsy's smothered cries.

But afterward, when they brought the child to him that evening, and he gazed upon him—his own son—his spirit mounted. It was going to be all right—it was going to be all right! He and Gypsy and the little fellow! Why, that was an unbeatable combination.

"Isn't he the darlinest?" It was a week later and the baby, a bundle of pink blanket and muslin, with only the top of a rosy head showing, lay on Gypsy's arm. Her curls were freshly brushed, her eyes had the peculiar deep, lambent glow that comes to young mothers just out of the shadowy valley. Tom had eyes only for her.

"Isn't he the sweetest, most adorable?" Tom Weaver, you're not paying attention to your son! You're not listening to a word I say." He grinned at her. "He's a wonder. But honestly, Gypsy, do you think he's much to look at right now? I was admiring you. Do you mind?"

"Silly!" She pretended to be annoyed, ignoring the flattery. "He's the most beautiful thing God ever made! Aren't you, precious? Aren't you the most beautiful thing God ever made? Look at his little hands, Tommy. Marvellous!"

"Your mother says he's like the Glynns," said Tom slyly. "But I say he's the living image of my Great Uncle Tobias!"

Gypsy looked up quickly, to say with pride, "Why, Tommy, he looks like no one else in the world but you. How could anyone say he looks like Uncle Tobias! Dreadful fat old man!"

Tom roared, delighted at the way she had risen to the bait. Of course David Morell Weaver was the very image of his father! Of course he was handsome! And of course one day, in the march of time, he'd be president.

"You're the most extraordinary girl," Tom murmured. "Last year you were just a kid, dancing, playing around. And now you're a full-fledged parent, bristles and everything."

"You stop teasing me," Gypsy told him with dignity. "I am now a full-time mother, with no sense of humour where my child is concerned."

The McKinnons had returned from Minnesota during the early part of Gypsy's hospital sojourn, so it was to the apartment instead of to the little house that the young Weavers brought David Morell.

They arrived there one brisk October morning, greeted by a slow, plump, talkative individual who had been recommended by Doctor McGuire as a practical nurse. And immediately the tempo of life changed. The hospital had been dull—Gypsy had looked forward to coming home—but at least the routine had been precise and orderly. The baby had gone back to his nursery after every feeding and the young mother had known nothing of the routine of baths, diapers and airings.

Now everything was different. Mrs. Burby was inefficient though amiable. Gypsy's own room was a welter of powder cans, safety pins, folded small garments and a basinette which seemed to overshadow everything else. The kitchen was never tidy. There was always a boiling container on the stove. There were potatoes, half of them peeled, in the sink. There were rags, towels, soiled dishes everywhere.

At the end of the second week of this, Gypsy's patience broke. She said desperately, "I can't stand it any longer, Tom. You'll have to go down to an agency and get a maid. I'm strong enough to bath baby myself now. We'll let her go in the morning."

But she looked about her in despair the morning of Mrs. Burby's departure.

"I don't know where to begin," she said wearily. The living room was dusty, the chairs were all in the wrong places, the pictures were awry. There were half dead flowers in the blue vase. The kitchen was piled high with soiled clothes, week-old newspapers. There were crumbs on stove and sink. The coffee pot, with a scuff of grounds on spout and lid, stood on the window sill.

It was the first morning Gypsy had got out of bed before breakfast, under doctor's orders. Now she donned one of her old summer prints and, having assured herself that the baby was warm and wasn't in a draft, she attacked the kitchen.

Wasn't Tom coming back? Would he have to battle with this disorder all day? She began to regret having let Mrs. Burby go, as wave after wave of weakness swept over her. But her spirit was valiant. She filled the dishpan with warm soapy water and stubbornly attacked the dis-easing task. She had stacked the cups and saucers in the drainer and was beginning to experience the fine flavour of encouragement when she heard a thin reedy wail.

She hurried to the baby. "What is it? What does he want, the darling?"

Oh, what an idiot she was! He was used to his bath at precisely this hour. Mrs. Burby had impressed on her the importance of doing the same thing at the same time for, David. And she had been forgetting.

She was not, really strong enough, but it seemed worth both labour and exhaustion to be rid of the dawdling, never-silent, complaining Mrs. Burby. The first day Gypsy was carried through by sheer force of will and nervous energy. Tom tried agency after agency, but there seemed no one anxious to do cooking and general housework in a family with a brand new baby. At the end of 24 hours young Mrs. Weaver found herself almost regretting the departure of her erstwhile assistant. Her back ached and her feet were on fire. There was everything still to do. Beds were only half made, dinner half prepared. How did young mothers manage without assistance, Gypsy wondered. Was it possible that only a month and a half ago she had been strong, rested, that she had thought housework and cooking amusing?

She was too tired to eat. Tom watched her anxiously as she lay, quite exhausted, on the day bed.

"This can't go on," he said. "I'll bring someone in, first thing in the morning, if I have to sand-bag her." And now the baby was crying. He had to be changed, fed; his bed had to be made fresh. There were piles of small garments waiting to be washed.

"It's endless," Gypsy wailed on a long sigh, collapsing into bed. Tom patted her shoulder, his young face creased by a frown of worry and bewilderment.

Later, as she dozed off, she could hear him clattering ineptly in the kitchen, disposing of the dishes.

Next morning she dragged herself out, only half rested. Young David had awakened in the night, of course for his feeding. A baby's demands were inexorable. Tom scrambled together his own hasty breakfast and Gypsy drank a cup of coffee lifelessly, standing at the kitchen table. She must let everything go now, attend to the baby's bath first. What luxury, she thought longingly, it would be to sink down to sleep this morning; to sleep the clock around and waken refreshed, made new!

She went to gather him up, a rosy bundle of babyhood, a few moments later and even her tired eyes brightened at the sight of him.

into every one of Mr. Churchill's allegations.

He was not terrified by the medieval penalties threatened by Mr. Churchill and welcomed the chance of once again proving that Mr. Churchill had found another mare's nest.

ORIGINAL MEMORANDUM.

The original memorandum of the Chamber came to his notice on July 7. He was at that time concerned to foster a project for the settlement of differences between Lancashire and India by direct negotiation between their representatives.

At the beginning of last July it was by no means certain that the negotiations which he was convinced were essential for the establishment of good relations between Lancashire and India would ever take place.

Certain passages in the Chamber's original memorandum seemed to him to be likely to destroy any chance of the negotiations.

He felt bound to have this brought to the notice of the Chamber. His responsibilities as Secretary of State for India comprised much more than a defence of the White Paper, and so far from apologising for what he did he would have been guilty of a breach of his duty if he had refrained from doing anything in his power which would promote so important an agreement.

In point of fact his efforts were not successful, and it was not until four months later that representations on the same lines were made by the Lancashire delegation which went to India and resulted in the amendment of the Chamber's memorandum.

MISSION'S ACTION.

The Committee of Privileges found that Sir Samuel Hoare's version of events was substantially accurate, and found that the reason that the Manchester Chamber of Commerce amended their original evidence was the receipt of cables from the Mission which had gone to India, insisting upon the wrong and cordial supplementary memorandum which had just been submitted on behalf of Lancashire.—Reuter Special and United Press.

ADVICE SOUGHT.

The Committee of Privileges of House of Commons are satisfied that neither Sir Samuel Hoare nor Lord Derby has behaved in such a way that they should be held to have tampered with any witness or to have attempted to bring about improperly the alteration of any evidence to be given on behalf of the Manchester Chamber of Commerce and other bodies.

The advice of both was sought by the Chamber of Commerce and was given in the manner described in the report.

What was called pressure was no more than advice or persuasion.—British Wireless.

MORGAN APPLICATION.

ANXIOUS TO CONTINUE AS PRIVATE BANKERS

New York, June 8.
J. P. Morgan and Company have applied to the State Superintendent of Banks to continue as private bankers under the State Banking Laws.

The Company is prepared to publish a statement of its affairs whenever the Superintendent requires.—Reuter.

A double casualty was caused in Nathan Road yesterday, when a motor-cycle driven by a Chinese knocked down a Chinese, and, in endeavouring to avoid him, swerved his machine into a second pedestrian. The injured were two boys, Tang Cheung, 15, and So Tang, 15, both of whom received rather serious injuries and were conveyed to the Kowloon Hospital.

Shock attendant on results caused the death of Yu Kuan-tin at Yau-mai yesterday, when he upset a pot of boiling tea on himself. The man died after being taken to the Kwong Wah Hospital.

THE SMART FORD V8

Operates for less— THAN ANY FORD EVER BUILT

● THE V-TYPE ENGINE holds every record for speed on land, water and in the air.

● FREE ACTION for all four wheels—with the priceless safety of strong axle construction.

The smartest car that Ford has ever built is the smartest buy your budget has ever seen. The new Ford V-8 is the most economical car that Ford has yet produced.

That big Ford V-8 engine, which is capable of a generous 80 miles per hour, is actually miserly when it comes to fuel. It consumes less gasoline than many engines that have less cylinders and less power.

Ford V-8 is equipped with aluminum-alloy pistons which minimize carbon formation. Tungsten steel valve seat inserts virtually let you say "good-bye forever" to valve grinding.

In addition, the Ford V-8's dependable springs—which give you free action on all four wheels—have shackles that require no lubrication. And the whole car is so reliably, so strongly built that you will never be plagued with repair bills.

Before you buy any car at any price, drive the smart and economical Ford V-8.

MOTOR NOTES

Vauxhall Sales Record

In spite of rather adverse conditions, the Hongkong Agents for the Vauxhall cars report good business for the first part of 1934, no less than twenty-three models having been sold to local residents for delivery in England, this being apart from the number of cars sold for local use. The turnover is believed to constitute a record in respect of orders for overseas deliveries.

The facilities offered by the Vauxhall manufacturers in conjunction with the Hongkong Hotel Garage, solve the Home Leave Motoring problem most satisfactorily. Briefly, the arrangement is this: After the particular model has been chosen in Hongkong, the makers' receive instructions as to when it is to be handed over in London. The owner has the use of it whilst at home, and at the expiration of his leave, merely delivers the vehicle back to the makers who then box and ship it to the Hongkong agents who take delivery at this end, and hold the car in readiness for the owner when he returns. The conditions are most favourable, and the fact that so many Hongkong motorists have accepted the offer, proves its popularity and convenience.

The restoration of Pedder Street as a car park will have been welcomed by many owner-drivers, although whether it is a wise move to use the very centre of the city for this purpose is another matter. It was generally anticipated, however, that lines would have been marked out obliquely in order to render the actual process of parking more easy. As it is, large vehicles find it difficult to take a sudden turn at right angles, and a certain amount of congestion is bound to occur, in consequence. Surely motorists could be given instruction that to park at an angle is preferable.

We have received a report from Los Angeles which states that Al Gordon, driving a Ford V-8, won the 250 mile Gilmore Gold Cup road race for stock cars, before a huge gathering of 75,000 spectators. The winner averaged 65 miles per hour, his time being 4 hours and 14 seconds. The course itself is an adobe surface and is only two miles in circumference. Five different makes of cars competed, the race being run under AAA supervision. Only two accidents occurred during the race. On the thirtieth lap Chet Gardner, driving in fifth position, struck a bump on the last turn and rolled over, throwing him and his mechanic out of the car. Gardner was not seriously hurt, but his mechanic suffered a broken hip. On the 85th lap, Bob Hahn driving a Rockne performed a tail-spin, but he and his mechanic suffered only minor injuries. The Plymouth piloted by Woodford was the only car apart from the Fords to finish the gruelling contest.

The Royal Book of Remembrance, which is to be placed in the magnificent new Shrine at Melbourne, is now on its way to Buckingham Palace for the King's signature and inscription.

It embraces forty volumes and contains the names of the 120,000 men and women who served in the Great War. It is a masterpiece of the scribe's art and is hand printed on rich parchment. The volumes will be placed in a bronze casket in the Inner Shrine for the dedication ceremony on November 11th, this year, at which the Duke of Gloucester will be present, says Austral News.

VAUXHALL SALES GO UP AND UP
Last Summer Vauxhall opened the biggest motor show in the world at Olympia, London. At Olympia, the critics declared it the Car of the Year. And now the motor show has more than confirmed this verdict. For Vauxhall sales have reached a record level. They have gone up and up. They are still going up. This is surely a remarkable fact to have gained such esteem within a year!

THE GOVERNMENT &amp; THE PUBLIC

Our correspondent, "Citizen," to-day deals at considerable length with the main causes which lie at the back of the undoubted resentment felt amongst a considerable section of the community at the manner in which local laws and regulations are enforced. Briefly stated, this resentment may be said to have its origin in the undue multiplicity of regulations, in the pin-pricking policy often adopted in their enforcement, and in the tendency on the part of certain sections of the Police Force to bring prosecutions in respect of minor offences in order to make a good showing with "cases." There is also a widely prevalent belief that some of our police officers are not above vindictiveness in bringing cases to Court. Much of the trouble, however, is to be traced back to the fact that we are suffering from over-government in this Colony, illustrated by the plethora of regulations, with which the average resident cannot possibly keep himself posted. Leaving aside, at the moment, those regulations which are redundant or totally unnecessary, the fact is that the authorities take no adequate means of informing the public when fresh additions or amendments are made. To take traffic regulations as an example, the Government appears to labour under the belief that it has done its duty when it notifies changes through the medium of the Gazette, regardless of the fact that only a very small section of the community ever sees this publication. The consequence is that it is left to the Press, of its own initiative, to notify the public, in its news columns, of changes made. Even so, there is seldom any explanation given in the Gazette of the effect of the additions or alterations, in order to discover which very considerable research is usually necessary. A case in point recently occurred in connection with the changes in city car-parking arrangements. But for the newspapers, which had to go to the trouble of referring back to past regulations, sorting out the old from the new, the public would never have known that the changes had been made. And what is true of the traffic regulations is true also of other matters of equal public importance. As one necessary step in the direction of acquainting residents of matters which affect their daily lives, we appeal for greater clarity in official notifications, coupled with a freer use of the advertisement columns of the newspapers as the most effective method of reaching the public.

NOTES OF THE DAY

LONDON DISORDERS

Sir Oswald Mosley and his Black Shirts have again provoked a serious disturbance in London and thrown a great strain on the resources and patience of the police. Both inside and outside Olympic scenes of violence occurred and at the conclusion, the Black Shirts required a police escort to see them home. It is not sufficient to argue that the trouble was fostered by Communists. The public too readily slips into the habit of mind that immediately associates Communists with any incident of disorder; as though they alone could be capable of such a thing. The fact is that among most sections of the community at home, the regimentation and military organisation of the Black Shirts, the wearing of uniforms and the virtual establishment of a private Mosley army, is resented and its public appearance, is, therefore, highly provocative.

FASCIST FREEDOMS

The Government does nothing to restrict the activities of Sir Oswald Mosley and his satellites, and there is a suspicion abroad that they are financially assisted by powerful industrialists and others who dislike the labour movement and trade unions. The support given to the Fascists by the Rotherham press is reflective of this development. Few people believe in the possibility of the Mosley movement making popular progress in England; and if there is this conviction, it lends additional force to demands for suppression, at least as a half-formed semi-military organisation. To permit it to flare up, cause a great deal of trouble and disorder, before petering out, is a futile and foolish proceeding, exceeding the necessities of respect for the rights and liberties of the subject. The Mosleyites show no respect for ordinary freedoms. Political speakers of democratic groups go to their meetings expecting to be heckled and prepared to deal with it good-naturedly as long as it remains good-natured, as it invariably does. The employment of powerful bullies to quash the first word of protest from any member of the audience fits badly with British ideas of political campaigning. Not that this pleasant little habit need cause any anxiety; the method is a boomerang.

RELIEF IN U.S.

The announcement that a thousand million dollars may be spent in the United States for road construction follows the Relief Administrator's warning that the federal government may have to spend billions of dollars more than it has already spent for unemployment relief and public works projects and a sharp reminder that one of the most important jobs of the New Deal is a long way from being finished. Whatever else the Roosevelt administration may seek to do, and however widely its various policies may be criticised, there is one point on which all are agreed. People who cannot get work are not going to suffer from hunger, cold, and homelessness much longer. So far the Government has spent $1,500,000,000 on unemployment relief. The Relief Administrator, Mr. K. Hopkins was given $950,000,000 in the spring to carry him through the summer; but it is going fast, and there is every indication that it is not going to be enough.

END OF TETHER

There is one very disturbing fact in connection with the recovery programme. Unemployment may be shrinking, as is claimed, and payrolls may be going up; but there are to-day some 4,700,000 people on federal relief rolls, as compared with 4,500,000 a year ago. In other words, an increasing number of jobless people, unable to obtain work, have come to the end of their last resources and are obliged to turn to the Government for charity. In spite of business improvement, the Roosevelt Administration is directly supporting more people now than it was supporting a year ago. There is no reason to believe that the present rate of revival will materially reduce the number in the immediate future.

KEY FACTOR

The development brings America up against the key factor in the whole equation. Behind all the talk of codes, reform measures, monetary policies, Stock Exchange control, and the like, there is a large, solid, and interesting body of people who will starve if the government fails to provide them with food and shelter. They must be taken care of, because while the job of caring for them is expensive, it is not likely to be half so expensive as cutting them off the relief rolls would be. The pressure which this fact may exert on the recovery programme is not a thing to be overlooked.

MR. PEPYS IN HONGKONG

1st, June.—This day I did expect rain, but save for a drizzle in the forenoon none did fall, but the air was so clear that, looking from my verandah, it did seem as if I could stretch out my hand and touch the Peak: which is ever a harbinger of rain. Reading in the news sheets, I do learn that Mr. E. Ferry falls in a faint after being beaten at lawn tennis; and I do perceive that such is the fashion. Yet I trust that it be not introduced here. Ill news from America, where the water-front strike waxes, and more violence is feared, the influence, they say, being Communist. This evening I do fall into talk with Mr. G. Green, who tells me that the Julying Sweep goes mighty well, while as for the through numbers in the ordinary Cash Sweeps for to-morrow, he learns that in some cases there be not sufficient tickets printed. Which to my mind is satisfactory, yet it doth remain to be seen what will happen after the recess. For the Meeting to-morrow is the last for some four months or so, and I imagine that every-one did seek to have one last plunge. But as to whether so many will lay their money down when there comes a meeting over fortnight I am not so well assured. Later, writing my mail, and so to bed.

2nd.—This day, upon waking, I do find myself in a fever, and so must needs keep my bed, which fortune is the foulest that ever anything in the world was, as I had been minded to take my luncheon at the Jockey Club, and thence watch the races until later I do bowle. But I am in no body for it, and so lie abed and sleep for the most part. In the evening comes Mr. Povey, Creed, and others to my chamber, and tell me of the Races over a glass of Holland, with which I do make them furnish themselves, and I very ill-pleased that I cannot join them. Yet when I do hear that my old friend, Mr. J. Heard, hath ridden five winners in the afternoon I do forget this in my pleasure at his success. When speaking of the winners, Creed tells me that in a certain news sheet a Captain Foster doth tip three of these winners as his selection for an outside wager. But who Captain Foster may be I know not.

3rd. (Lord's Day).—This day I do rejoice to find that I am eased of my fever, though Lord! I do feel more melancholic and out of sorts than I had done with it. As to the weather, last night and this day very wet and with great squalls of wind and heavy rain. And one of these took place, as I now learn, yesterday at some three of the clock (but I know it not, being sound asleep), and Mr. J. Heard says that it was during the third race; which he wins very cleverly upon King's Justice. But Lord! he tells me that in weighing out he doth tip the scale at well nigh two and a half pounds more than when weighing in, being so rained upon during the race. And indeed, I do trust that Mistress Dynasty doth take no harm of her wetting when she doth lead Justice in. This day I do search my records but I cannot find that I have won any money in the Julying Sweep, or elsewhere, and I am sorry for it. And unless I do draw Colombo in the Calcutta Sweep, I am indeed of all men the most miserable. But when I do on my garments and go down to the Barre, about six of the clock, and tell this to Mr. Ash and some others, they do laugh and say that Colombo will not win. But I do call to mind that last year every-one did tell the same tale of Hyperion. Later we speak of drought in America, where it is said that the wheat crop will be the smallest for years. But why this be spoken of as a serious situation, I am at a stand to know, for in past years there has been great talk of over-production. And it would seem that if there be a big crop it is a disaster, and if there is a small crop it is a disaster, and so all is wrong what ever happens. And I am sometimes minded to suppose that experts in Political Economy amount to no more than hot-air merchants. News comes from Australia that the Melbourne C.C. have set up a notice against bar-racking; and I am mighty glad of it. But I do believe that the root of the trouble lies at Sydney. Dined frugally upon slops, which, to my mind, are as nasty a diet as ever I ate, and so to bed, still melancholic.

4th.—Upon this day we do celebrate the birthday of His Majesty, whom may God bless. The review in the morning is held at ten of the clock, that the troops may move off before the full heat of the day. But Lord! the day is so humid that it proves the worst yet this summer, and all are soaked through in a minute. Later we drink the King's health in the Clubb—My Lord proposing it—and sing a verse or two of the anthem: Later to luncheon, where Mr. Muleygrubs and his Lady, Admiral Ash, Mr. Wynne, and another pretty Lady do join me. And all very merry at my table, yet I myself am sad that my wife, poor wretch, was not there to grace my board. Yet I do trust that she shall be next year. After luncheon, to my chamber, where I do place a long chair in my window, half upon the verandah and half within; and thence sleep very cool. But I am glad that my verandah is not overlooked, I having done off the major part of my garments. Dressed later, but Lord! how I do avenge, even under the fan. And so, with a kerchief inside my starched collar, (which likes me not in summer-time,) across to Mr. Muleygrubs, where we dine upon the verandah, and then to my Lord's, where it proves most pleasantly cool in the garden, and this contrary to my expectation. Moreover I did find the Ball-room cool beyond hope, large blocks of ice being set about with coloured lights, and all very fair to look on. But upon a hot night, I do think that the women, from the fashion of their garb, do have the best of it. For, as I do tell Mr. Povey, I had rather be low-necked than high-browed, or high-collared either. Home at midnight by walking, but when I get to my chamber, I am in a sad pickle, and do cast out my garments upon the verandah. And so to bed.

5th.—Reading this day in the Solicitor's Journal, which is a merry enough sheet in parts, I learn that a Mr. J. Yonge, who was Master of the Rolls in the eighth Harry's time, was granted as part of his emoluments a tun of Gascon wine annually. And this later I do tell to my old friend Mr. E. Hamilton, and ask him if it be so with him. But he retorts that he is but a Magistrate, and in any case doth prefer to drink of Ale, of which he directs that I shall purchase him a flaggon. And I do make a vow that hereafter I will not jest with Justice, it being as a sport most unprofitable. Very busy at the office, and later, (Continued on Page 9.)

Get your HOT-WEATHER WARDROBE READY

by Julia

THE spring season wanes and fashion-minded girls begin to think about late spring and early summer costumes that can be worn during the hot months.

This weather is getting a bit too warm for the spring suit that was just the right weight on Easter morning—it's almost time to hang it in the closet until October breezes blow again.

All right, then, let's look at the handsome outfits recommended as substitutes for your tweeds. It's going to be a very pleasant shopping tour, what with fashion designers doing their best to please each and every taste.

First of all, look for fabrics that are cool, but which have body and durability. That's a pretty adequate fabric test for any costume. Remember that hot-weather dresses are called upon to withstand more hardships than winter frocks because they aren't covered up with coats and wraps.

There are luscious sheers in three weights, double, triple and plain sheer. These are cool indeed. And the chiffons are definitely in the comfortable-for-summer category. Don't miss them.

If you work in an office and like to wear dresses that can go in to the tub, get washable silks or some of the new cottons. Eyelet batiste, dotted Swiss and many other novelty cottons will be good this year. Linen is a smart choice, too—though it does wrinkle easily.

Colours are important considerations in your campaign for coolness. Though black is pretty hot, its close kin, navy blue is ideal. You can have plain navy or, if you are one who likes printed materials, there are lovely navy blues printed with diminutive dots and floral motifs.

Speaking of prints, they are very much in vogue and, in addition, combine two important assets. First, they're cool-looking and, second, they have the much-desired casualness about them.

You can have a printed dress with elbow-length, puffed sleeves, or a sleeveless dress with matching jacket. Either or both may be trimmed with crisp, white lingerie touches that are removable.

Accessories afford adequate opportunity to vary a wardrobe. On cloudy or rainy days you wear dark shoes, hat, gloves and purse with your navy blue, triple-sheer summer suit, and when the June sun is shining its brightest and hottest, try a Panama, washable white gloves, white purse and shoes.

The simple change will make you feel and look much, much cooler.

THIS TEAR DROP print in white and hyacinth on a navy ground has a shoulder line that emulates sailor collar themes. The fan-shaped frill, cuffs and part of the belt buckle are made of several layers of mousseline de soie.

A COOL-LOOKING printed dress in navy and white with small blossoms in cerise, chartreuse and bright blue has a shoulder yoke of navy blue taffeta and double loops which form a jabot. It is topped by a light-weight woolen capecoat.

ROSE is the color of this jacket frock, which is dotted with unusual white squares. Ruffles attached in serpentine fashion edge the scarf and the cuffs.

A SMART summer suit of navy crepe has a three-quarter coat that is snugly fitted through the waistline, especially in back. White mousseline de soie, edged in lace, forms the collar.

THIS ONE-PIECE frock has a black background and is printed in various shades of pink blossoms. The shoulders are shirred and so are the sleeves, at the elbows. The yoke, loops and narrow tie are of pink crepe.

THE CASE OF PROFESSOR EYDOUX AND THE ASPIRIN

Eydoux

BY MILTON BRONNER

LADEN with cameras, field glasses, maps and notebooks, the scholarly Professor Eydoux of the Paris Ecole Polytechnique and his comely secretary, Mademoiselle Georgette Bonnefond, touring Italy on holiday, set out on September 4, 1932, from their lodgings in Tarviso for an all-day motor jaunt.

They did not return that evening to their lodgings but the landlord thought little of it, since they sometimes stayed away overnight when they made trips in their hired automobile to nearby points. However, when another night came and another and another, and still they had not put in an appearance, the circumstances were reported to the authorities.

Immediately afterward, though nothing definite was heard of the pair, a thick, impenetrable silence settled down upon the whole affair. Nobody in Tarviso admitted to knowing anything about it or even asked any questions.

In Paris, the home of the professor and his secretary, the case was quite different. As time went on and they failed to return from their holiday, friends naturally wondered. Inquirers, however, drew blanks. The families of the missing man and woman preserved a mysterious reticence which, while it had in it an element of uneasiness, certainly did not seem to hold the agony of suspense that might have been expected.

ARREST REVEALED.

A month, two months passed. It was Christmas, then New Year's. And suddenly one day in mid-January, the mystery was a mystery no longer. The Italian government announced that Professor Eydoux and Mademoiselle Bonnefond, without the knowledge of anybody in France save their families and the Foreign Office, had been held in an Italian prison since the day of their unexplained disappearance. They were charged, the announcement added, with being military spies.

At once Paris seethed with contradictory rumours concerning the pair. They had been caught sketching fortifications and would probably be put to death. No, not at all—the Italian government had slipped up this time. The two could prove that they had only been making water colour studies of the scenery and so they were about to be released.

ASPIRIN? WHAT OF THAT?

The one item that all the hearers seemed to agree about was a bizarre report that a quantity of aspirin carried by either the professor or his secretary was to play a star role in the trial.

But what could aspirin have to do with spying, or even the charge of it? Nobody could imagine. Meantime, in Italy antagonism to the prisoners was growing. The relations between France and Italy were not too cordial anyway. Always since the World War there had been loose talk about the possibility of war between the two nations and now this Frenchman and his friend, employee or whatever, were accused of gathering information along a strategically important boundary line, that between Italy and Yugoslavia, leading member of the Little Entente, closely allied in a military way with France.

Yugo-Slavia, also, is more of a sore point with Italy, then any of the other members of the Little Entente because the smaller country raised such an outcry when Fiume and all the best Adriatic ports were turned over to the Italians after the war.

FRANCE IS AROUSED.

Feeling was running as high in

A seemingly innocent scene in which Italy saw a dread menace.

France as in Italy. Friends of Professor Eydoux were pointing out that his position at the Ecole Polytechnique gave him a legiti-mate important connection with the technical engineering training of French Army engineers and artillery officers. They said he might, therefore, have made sketches, in all innocence, of subjects, such as hydro-electric installations which would be of special interest to him.

Furthermore, as a member of the Salon des Artistes Francaises, he was quite likely to sketch scenery when on holiday.

In the midst of the discussion, the Italian government issued a statement setting forth the specific charges. They identified Professor Eydoux as "an engineer specializing in road and bridge construction" and accused him of conspiring, together with his secretary, Mademoiselle Bonnefond, within the meaning of Article 257 of the Penal Code to procure, for the purpose of military espionage, information which in the interests of the security of the state, should remain secret.

LONG UNDER OBSERVATION.

The man and woman, it was revealed, had been under observation as they travelled about Italy and Yugo-Slavia for some weeks before their arrest and had been seen to take notes of certain localities, bridges and roads which the professor had then developed into what seemed to be reports and plans, later found in his possession.

The charges concluded with the declaration that he had confessed to having entered Italy to collect military information of interest to his country.

There was no mention of aspirin in this initial document but when the trial began before the Special Tribunal for the Defence of the Realm in Rome on February 4, this odd angle of the case was immediately brought up.

Why, the prosecution asked, had the prisoners been carrying aspirin? In case they had headaches, of course, the prisoners themselves answered with some asperity. The prosecutor called the attention of the court to the fact that aspirin was notoriously used in the preparation of invisible ink. Professor Eydoux and Mademoiselle Bonnefond replied that they had never heard of such a use. They carried the drug as a medicine and used it for that purpose only, they said.

SECRECY DENIED.

The professor frankly admitted that he had made observations along the Yugo-Slav frontier at the request of a French military friend. He also confessed that he had supplied French authorities with notes on events observed on the road over the Simplon Pass, but he said there had been no secrets in his reports. Any intelligent man, he asserted, could have seen the same things and turned out the notes.

Mademoiselle Bonnefond said she thought all the time the professor was collecting material for a book or a magazine article or something. She had helped him with his work as she was paid to do but she had not even known that he was sending reports back to Paris, she insisted.

The frank manner of the prisoners made a good impression on the court and their Italian attorney argued to good effect that Eydoux had done no more than apply his expert knowledge to roads and railroads which could be seen by any casual traveller. Luckily, this attorney, Signor Emilio Tommasi, had helped draft the Penal Code under which his clients were being tried, and the court was obviously impressed when he declared that the activities of Professor Eydoux would not come under its provisions against securing secret information.

Nevertheless, the Prosecutor asked that Eydoux be sentenced to fifteen years in prison and Mademoiselle Bonnefond to ten. Eydoux got five years and Mademoiselle Bonnefond three.

Each, however, was given a remission of three years of the sentence under an amnesty which had been granted to celebrate the tenth anniversary of the Fascist march on Rome. Mademoiselle Bonnefond was released at once and ordered to leave the country.

A few months later, when the famous Four Power Pact for the Preservation of Peace for ten years was signed in Rome, Mussolini, jubilant over the event, pardoned Professor Eydoux and sent him back to Paris.

GROWING DISTRUST OF LOCAL GOVERNANCE

KEEN ANALYSIS OF CAUSES

STRIKING CRITICISMS OF SYSTEM BY RESIDENT

COMMISSION OF JURISTS URGED

Sir,—In my letter which appeared in your issue of the 5th inst. I referred to the feeling of antagonism and distrust aroused amongst ordinarily law-abiding members of the community in regard to the laws and regulations of the Colony. May I now be permitted to give what I consider the main reason for the growth of this feeling? They may be summarised as follows:

Multiplicity of Regulations.—The citizen is supposed to know the law, and ignorance thereof is no defence in Court. Owing to the large number of regulations which now affect his day-to-day life, it is impossible for him to know anything like all of them, and even the Executive Authority frequently slips up owing to lack of familiarity with them—hence the frequency with which cases before the Courts have to be withdrawn.

Non-withdrawal of Dead Laws and Regulations.—There are a vast number of obsolete regulations, etc., which are not removed from the effective list, and which confuse the public—e.g., according to law, it is still illegal to drive a car unless it has two separate and independent brakes—which no modern car possesses.

PARTIALITY SUSPICION.—These are orders which are allowed to fall into disuse and then are suddenly resuscitated at the particular time or against a particular individual or concern—i.e., there is no continual application of them in respect of the public generally. This is a type of charge which, rightly or wrongly, especially gives the public the idea that the law is used for more or less personal reasons—e.g., to "get one's own back" on the part of some official. For example, there are regulations indicating where cars may be parked, and it is actually illegal to park a car elsewhere on public property without a permit. It is common knowledge that these regulations are consistently broken every day by the whole motoring public—including Government servants! Now it quite often happens that, out of the blue, the police will suddenly decide that parking in a given place constitutes an obstruction. Perhaps the officer in charge of the area may have been changed, and the new man might consider dangerous a practice tolerated by his predecessor. Anyway, people who perhaps have parked their cars for ages in a given place suddenly find themselves summoned.

It should not be left to an executive officer to decide when and where he will enforce the law. It should be his job to enforce it at all relevant times, and in connection with all such persons or concerns as is called for by the law. It is just this discrimination by executive officials that raises in the public mind the suspicion of partiality.

"WAR ON DOGS."—The anti-rabies regulations form a typical example under this head. The regulations, as designed, cannot possibly effect the object for which they were drafted, but, nevertheless, they are enforced to the disgust and annoyance of all intelligent people, who realise their uselessness. It was, I am sure, but an unconscious reflection of the attitude of the community to this particular set of regulations which moved a newspaper recently to report Court cases under the caption "War on Dogs."

Prosecution for Technical Offences.—Public revolt is more encouraged by Government's practice of allowing prosecution for technical breaches of ordinances, etc., than by any other means. The Press is daily witness that the Courts are cluttered with cases where it is not even pretended that the spirit of the regulation concerned is broken, or that anything has happened, or has been, or is likely to be, caused to the detriment of the welfare of the community. There is nothing which makes for more annoyance than being "caught out" on some small point which one knows does not matter at all, but for which one has no redress.

final form, which has now received the full approval of the Commission, it recognises the necessity of the return of Germany to the Conference and brings within its purview exchanges between the principal European Powers, as disclosed in the notes and declarations recently published.

The restoration of complete Anglo-French accord is particularly welcomed here, and a cordial reception is assured Monsieur Barthou, who has announced his intention of visiting London in July.

THE RESOLUTION.

The resolution, which was submitted to the General Commission by M. Barthou, declares that, taking into consideration the resolution submitted by the delegations of the six Powers, the Turkish delegation and the delegation of the U.S.S.R. respectively, and taking into account the clarification of its work resulting from the French memorandum of January 1st, the Italian memorandum of January 4th, the United Kingdom memorandum of January 20th, and the German declaration of April 16th, is convinced of the necessity of the Conference continuing its work with a view to arriving at a general convention for the reduction and limitation of armaments, and is resolved to continue, without delay the investigations already undertaken.

The resolution invites the Bureau to seek, by whatever means it deems appropriate, and with a view to the general acceptance of a disarmament convention, a solution of outstanding problems, without prejudice to private conversations in which the Governments will desire to enter in order to facilitate final success by the return of Germany to the Conference.

THE DECISIONS.

The resolution proceeds that, having regard to the peculiar importance presented by the situation and the solution of certain problems to which attention was drawn at the beginning of the general discussion, the Commission takes the following decisions:

Firstly: Security. Since the earlier work of the Conference has enabled certain regional security agreements to be concluded in Europe during the past year, the General Commission decides to appoint a special committee to conduct such preliminary studies as it may consider appropriate in order to facilitate the conclusion of further agreements of the same nature which may be negotiated outside the Conference. It would be for the General Commission to determine the relationship of any of these agreements to the general convention. The General Commission also decides to appoint a special committee to study the question of guarantees of execution and to resume work relating to supervision.

OTHER POINTS.

Secondly: Air Force. The General Commission instructs its Air Committee to resume forthwith the study of questions mentioned under its resolution of July 23rd, 1932.

Thirdly: Trade in and Manufacture of Arms. The General Commission requests its special committee to resume its work forthwith in the light of the statement made by the United States delegation on May 30th, and to report to it as early as possible on the solution it recommends.

The resolution adds that these committees will work on parallel lines co-ordinated by the Bureau Commission, leaving it to the Bureau to take the necessary steps at the proper time to ensure that when the President convenes the Commission it will have before it, reading in the news sheets, I do find some enquiry as to unpaid bonds of America. Now, as I do believe, the reference was to a speech made in London, and reported in the local news sheets, together with a little rhyme, which was so unparliamentary that I will forbear to quote it. But, though I have no accurate knowledge, I do verily believe the bonds to which reference was made were of a loan raised from neutrals by the South during the Civil War in America. And, as all men know, the North did win, and so maybe did not feel bound to repay them. But of this I have no sure knowledge, or place of reference. Yet some such reference must be available, and I doubt not that the History Professor at the University could tell us; were he in the Colony.

6th.—A hot day, though not so humid. Very busy all day at my office, and later writing in my chamber, but I am much discommoded by flying ants, which, this year, seem worse than ever I knew. 7th.—This day up very betimes, and after I had trimmed myself to my office, and there I do discharge my duties, but Lord! when I come to return to the Clubhouse it rains immoderately. Later to my chirurgeon who prescribes some physio, which, if it be as efficacious as it is noxious, shall no doubt speedily restore me. Very busy writing all the evening, but I am sad at heart that I did fail of my appointment in the Calcutta Sweep. And indeed Colombo is but third. They say the bookies do lose a million, but I believe it not. And so to bed.

As far as possible, a complete draft convention.

Finally, the resolution requests the President to submit to various Governments the U.S.S.R. proposal to declare the Conference a permanent institute under the title of the Permanent Peace Conference.

QUARREL RECALLED.

In submitting the above resolution, M. Barthou, paid warm tributes to the United States and British delegates, and referring to the recent heated exchanges with Sir John Simon, said that when any difference divided France and England "we talk frankly and then reach an agreement."

Mr. Anthony Eden thanked Mr. Norman Davis and M. Barthou, whose joint and willing collaboration had made it possible to reach an agreement, and said the agreement would facilitate the return of Germany, adding that past difficulties had been due largely to the absence of a great Power whose presence is essential. Ever since Germany's withdrawal in October, the cause of disarmament and international understanding had suffered from that incident.—British Wireless.

SUDDEN DEATH OF AN M.P.

SIR L. FORESTIER-
WALKER

The death occurred suddenly at his home, Rhiwderin, Monmouthshire, of Sir (Charles) Leolin Forestier-Walker, Conservative M.P. for the Monmouth division for the last sixteen years.

Sir Leolin had been in failing health for some time and his last public appearance was at the funeral of his cousin Lord Tredegar.

Sir Leolin was the first Welsh Conservative to be elected Chairman of the Welsh National Party in the House of Commons. He was 68 years of age.

When he was eighteen he took up tea and coffee planting in Ceylon. A few years later he returned to this country, and opened a colliery in Monmouthshire. He was actively interested as a director with several business firms in South Wales, and was a keen sportsman.

Sir Leolin was made a Knight of the British Empire in 1926, and was created a baronet in 1929. For 21 years he was a member of Monmouthshire County Council, of which he had been Chairman. He was regarded as an authority on agriculture, and represented the Forestry Commission in the Parliament of 1924-29. He was formerly Chairman of the Kitchen Committee of the House of Commons.

He was the seventh son of the late Sir George Forestier-Walker, and married in 1894 Alice, the eldest daughter of John Blandy-Jenkins. There are two daughters. The polling in the Monmouth Division at the last General Election was as follows:

Sir C. L. Forestier-Walker (C) 24,829
The Rev. D. Hughes (Sec) 10,217

Conservative majority 14,612

ENGLISH BAY TREES FOR AUSTRALIA

Twenty English bay trees have just been unloaded from a steamer at Melbourne.

These trees are worth $25 a pair, and each has been carefully tended by expert horticulturists for twenty-five years. It is expected that there will be a big demand for them during the Centenary celebrations for decoration purposes, says Austral News.

To withstand the climatic changes during the voyage and rough handling, they were despatched with their trunks carefully bound with heavy wrapping and the whole of the foliage encased in layers of hessian.

CRICKET CONTRASTS IN COUNTY CHAMPIONSHIP

MIDDLESEX ASTONISHING WIN BY 9 WICKETS

RESULTS AT A GLANCE.

COUNTY CHAMPIONSHIP.
Middlesex (91 and 93-1) beat Northants (59 and 124) by nine wickets.
Warwick (474-8 dec.) beat Worcester (197 and 92) by innings and 185.
Lancashire (206 and 103) beat Gloucester (103 and 115) by innings and 53 runs.
Yorkshire (210) drew with Glamorgan (112-4).
Somerset (391) and 139-5 dec.) beat Hampshire (279 and 102) by 149 runs.
Surrey (322 and 137-3) beat Derbyshire (137) and 321 by seven wickets.
OTHERS MATCHES.
Australians scored 207 for 5 wickets in first innings against England (close of play).
Cambridge (440-1 dec.) draw with Essex (234 and 112-3).

SCORE 184 IN TWO VISITS TO THE CREASE

SEVERAL TEAMS WIN EASILY.

MORE DOUBLE CENTURIES

LONDON, JUNE 8.
Middlesex, Warwick, Lancashire, Northants, Somerset and Surrey all scored decisive victories in the county cricket championship, and in only one match did conditions prevent an outright verdict, Yorkshire and Glamorgan being unable to complete an innings each and both taking four points. The cricket was full of contrasts. Although Middlesex beat Warwick by nine wickets, the match produced only 367 runs for 31 wickets. Thanks to brilliant bowling by Smith, Warwick were dismissed in the first innings for 59 and in their second for 124. Middlesex batsmen were also in the tolls in their initial visit to the wicket, being sent back for 91, but they easily obtained the runs required for victory, losing one wicket in so doing. As a contrast, Warwickshire, Lancashire, Somerset and Surrey all scored with freedom. In Lancashire's knock of 454 for 5 wickets against Gloucester, Hopwood played a magnificent innings of 220, and Sibbles supported this with a great piece of bowling, when he captured 7 wickets for a mere 16 runs. Croom was also in his happiest mood for Warwick against Worcester (the Pottery men being weakened by the absence of Patnudi and Walters), and he rattled up 211 of Warwick's big aggregate of 474 for 8 declared.

LARWOOD CELEBRATES.

Groom was also well supported by a member of the attack, Paine bowling cleverly to return an analysis of 8 for 43. Larwood celebrated his omission from the Test team by toying with Leicester, and in the course of two innings captured 9 wickets for 84 runs, being chiefly instrumental in his side's victory by an innings. Cambridge scored at will against Essex, and with Winlaw and Human both passing the three figures mark, the Varsity were able to declare at 440 for 4 wickets. Essex only just saved the game.

SWIMMING GALA

SOUTH CHINA A.A. FUNCTION

Given fair weather, the swimming gala arranged for to-night at North Point by the South China Athletic Association in conjunction with the Women's Auxiliary of the Society for the Protection of Children promises to be one of the outstanding aquatic fetes of the season.

Not only are Chinese swimmers, including those who participated in the Far Eastern Olympics, to take part but some of the most prominent of the foreign swimmers of the Colony will also be seen in action, including members of the Victoria Recreation Club, who have some of the best exponents in Hongkong.

The gala is being held under the distinguished patronage of Lady Southern, and the proceeds will be devoted to the Hongkong Society for the Protection of Children.

Several local firms have donated attractive prizes, the donors including the China Emporium Ltd., Wing On Co., Ltd., Sincere Co., Ltd., and the Sun Co., Ltd.

The swimming will commence at 7 p.m. with a Men's 200 metres team race and will conclude with a Water Polo Match between Europeans and Chinese.

Here's the finish of the 1934 American turf classic, the 60th running of the Kentucky Derby at Churchill Downs, Saturday. Cavalcade, favoured in the betting, came from behind to finish three lengths ahead of Discovery, with Agrarian—a long shot—beating the filly, Mata Hari, to third money by half a length.

MAXIE BAER AND PRIMO CARNERA EXCHANGE COMPLIMENTS

ITALIAN HAS MENTALITY OF CHILD SAYS FILM STAR

BAER IS A DONKEY QUOTES CARNERA

New York, June 4.
The more you look at Primo Carnera and Max Baer the more you realize that as far as this heavyweight title fight is concerned you're going to have trouble guessing what will happen. But it's going to be something worth going many miles to see.

New York, June 4.
Baer has a lack of regard for the champion that amounts actually to contempt. Talking the situation over the other day he was all but apologizing for the man mountain he came to know rather well when they worked together last fall on a motion picture in California.

"He has the mentality of a child," Baer explains. "I feel kind of sorry for him. He's big, sure, and he's tremendously strong. I grant that. But he can't hit hard enough to really hurt you. Tommy Loughran proved that. He can't take a punch well, Loughran showed that too. The only thing he can do, is maul you, heave you around, step on your feet, lean on you, try to wear you down. Now what kind of qualities are those for a heavyweight champion?"

In a way he's dead right. In their fight in Miami, Loughran actually buckled the huge Italian's knees in a couple of rounds with rights to the jaw. He slammed another right into Carnera's side and the champion gasped. Tommy hit harder now than he ever did before, but he still is no Baer, and never will be.

A BIG DONKEY.

Then talk to Carnera and get the other side of the picture.

"Baer," says the champion, "is a big donkey. He makes a lot of noise. He cannot box. He has been abusing himself with parties in night clubs for almost a year. He is an actor now, not a prize fighter. He shouts loud now because he learned in making the picture in California that I can handle him like a baby, big as he is. He is whistling through the woods."

Carnera asks, in all sincerity, what Baer's career consists of, and the answer, honestly, must be that he knocked out Max Schmeling. Whether he ended the German's career as a smotherer, or whether Schmeling was up at that moment to be taken by any good hitter, no one ever will know.

But Loughran patted Baer around, and so did King Levinsky, and Ernie Schauf, among others. You must remember that Steve Hamas walloped Schmeling his next time out.

The credit there may be Steve's or it may be Baer's. Or whether credit there is for both those victories might have to go to the ring rust that settled in the German's joints in a year of inactivity.

THEIR STYLES.

As far as styles are concerned, and that's the only thing that interests the real ring worms when they come down to figuring a fight in advance, Carnera has exactly the thing that has bothered Max most—speed and a fine left jab.

With those weapons, Loughran made Baer look so silly that the California stood helplessly in the centre of the ring at one time, laughing with the crowd at his own efforts to lay a glove on the Philadelphian. He hit Loughran fairly solidly once in ten rounds. Boxing skill did that.

Carnera, there is no question, is exceptionally fast for such a giant of a man. He matched left jabs with Loughran and held his own in Miami, but only after he had tired his little opponent out by leaning on him, stopping on his feet, rushing him to the ropes and pummeling the back of his head.

Can he do that to Baer? There's the rub. Baer insists that he is as strong as Carnera and he may be close to that. Baer is a tremendously built fellow. His shoulders are huge. If Primo stands off and boxes, well there's that Loughran experience to remember.

HEAVY BOOKINGS FOR BIG FIGHT

More Than $150,000 Subscribed

New York, June 3.

Madison Square Garden today announced that advance sale of pasteboards for the Primo Carnera-Max Baer heavyweight championship bout has passed the $150,000 mark. Carnera, Italian Men Mountain and holder of the championship, and Baer, better known as "Modest Maxie," American challenger, are to meet on June 14 in the Long Island Bowl arena operated by Madison Square Garden.

The bout is being jointly staged by the Garden and Jack Dempsey, former world heavyweight champion, idol of boxing fans throughout the world, recently turned promoter since his retirement from the ring. The announcement made by the Garden elicited considerable interest among Manhattan's fight fans. Predictions were being freely circulated that the bout would approach, if not equal, the $1,000,000 gates brought in by the last fight between the two heavyweights.

Nation-wide interest has been aroused over the fight which is scheduled to bring into action for the first time, the two hardest-hitting of the present crop of heavyweight battlers.

DEMPSEY TELLS BAER OFF

Complains Of Lack Of Condition

Asbury Park, N.J., June 4.

A heated dispute between Jack Dempsey, former heavyweight champion of the world, and Maxie Baer, challenger for the title held by Primo Carnera, today culminated in the atmosphere of this combination watering place and city on the Atlantic Ocean where Baer is training for his championship fight.

Dempsey, in the presence of several sports scribes, said that it was high time Baer quit his monkey business and began to work if he wants to defeat Carnera.

Dempsey further stated that Baer must take his daily fights more seriously. "Not to be outdone, Baer, better known as 'Modest Maxie,'" said that the only reason he had been taking it easy in training was that he didn't want to hurt his sparring partner, at which, comeback Dempsey snorted.

DAVIS CUP.

GERMANY & FRANCE ALL SQUARE

MERLIN BEATEN BY VON CRAMM

London, June 8.

One of the most important Davis Cup ties of the 1934 competition started in Paris to-day, when France and Germany shared two singles.

It is fairly certain that the winner of this encounter will contest Australia in the European Zone final.

Von Cramm continued his remarkable sequence of successes by beating Andre Merlin in the first match of the day after four sets. Merlin, against a better equipped and more forceful player, put up a very fine display. He won the second set at the sixteen-h game, and carried the fourth to twelve games before being beaten.

Von Cramm played magnificently, his attack being slightly too well exploited for the Frenchman. Christian Boususs, France's No. 1 singles player, levelled things up by outplaying Nourney to the tune of three straight sets, in the course of which Boususs conceded only five games. To-day's doubles match is almost bound to settle the issue.

The scores as cabled by Reuter were:

Von Cramm (Germany) beat A. Merlin (France) 6-1, 7-9, 6-2, 7-5.

C. Boususs (France) beat R. Nourney (Germany) 6-1, 6-2, 6-2.

NEW ZEALAND v. CZECHOSLOVAKIA.

The New Zealand doubles pair, H. C. Stedman and C. E. Malfroy, did well to save the match against Czechoslovakia, when they easily, although somewhat surprisingly won.

Menzel and Heet, who recently played so well together in the French championships, conceded the match in three straight sets, although it went to 34 games.

Reuter cabled the following scores:

H. C. Stedman and C. A. Malfroy (New Zealand) beat R. Menzel and L. Heet (Czechoslovakia) 7-5, 6-4, 7-5.

This leaves Czechoslovakia leading by two rubbers to one, with two singles yet to be played.

AUSTRALIA THROUGH.

Australia, through J. Crawford and Adrian Quist won their second round tie with Japan to-day, by annexing the doubles against Yamagishi and Nishimura in four sets, after winning the first two in ridiculously easy fashion.

The crowd at Eastbourne saw the Australians capture the first two sets with the loss of one game. After this the Japanese settled down to take the third stanza at 6-4, and to carry the fourth to the sixteenth game before admitting defeat.

This victory gives Australia the required three rubbers for entry into the third round.

The full scores in the doubles tie according to Reuter were:

High Spots Of Yesterday's Test Cricket

HOW ENGLISH ATTACK ASSUMED THE ASCENDANCY: BRADMAN'S STROKE

WHEN, by patient methods, Woodfull and Ponsford added 77 runs in 90 minutes yesterday morning, it seemed that the suggestion that the winning of the toss would mean the difference between victory and defeat, was to be proved true.

BUT once Woodfull, formerly the "unbowlable," had been dismissed (it was a magnificent catch by Verity which did the trick), the England attack slowly, but perceptibly assumed control.

ALTHOUGH the rate of scoring throughout the day remained slow, no keen was the struggle between attack and batsmen, that, that the game was intensely interesting.

HIGH spots were: Ponsford's innings, and Leello Ames's catch which brought it to an end. Bradman's poor stroke, which saw him cock one up to the safe Hammond; McCabe's sound batting, so far without blemish.

THRENT Bridge, the ground of the medocro Test scores, appears likely to stand next to its reputation. An early dismissal of McCabe this morning will probably see Australia put for 250.

IN KEEN BATTLE OF WITS AT TRENT BRIDGE

STAN MACCABE TO THE RESCUE

FIRST FIVE WICKETS FALL FOR MERE 153 RUNS

Australia gave an indifferent account of herself in the opening day's play of the first Test match at Nottingham yesterday, losing five wickets for 207 runs before bad light, almost immediately after the tea interval, caused stumps to be drawn.

The English attack, led by Kenneth Farnes, making his debut in Test cricket, Geary and Hedley Verity, performed extraordinarily well on a wicket which at the start was perfect, and which for a short time after lunch was only slightly affected by a down-pour of rain.

Farnes captured two of the most important wickets in the Australian team, those of Woodfull and Ponsford, while Geary secured those of Brown and Bradman, and Verity that of Darling. Finally it was left to Stanley McCabe and Chipperfield to pull Australia out of a very delicate position, by advancing the score from 153 to 207.

Nottingham, June 8. Thirty thousand spectators had assembled at Trent Bridge by the time the match was due to commence. It was announced that, together with Wyatt, W. E. Bowes of Yorkshire and M. S. Nichols of Essex had been dropped from the fourteen players who were recently invited to prepare themselves for the Test.

England's team, therefore, is as follows:—C. F. Walters, (capt.), Nawab of Pataudi, K. Farnes, H. W. Sutcliffe, W. R. Hammond, M. Leyland, L. E. G. Ames, T. B. Mitchell, H. Verity, B. Hendren and G. Geary. Twelfth man—M. S. Nichols.

Simultaneously the Australian team was announced as follows:—W. M. Woodfull, (capt.), D. G. Bradman, (vice-capt.), W. R. Ponsford, S. J. McCabe, W. A. Brown, W. A. Oldfield, W. J. O'Reilly, L. S. Darling, T. W. Wall, C. V. Grimmett and A. G. Chipperfield. Twelfth man—E. H. Bromley.

The tourists have thus dropped from the side L. O'Brien, Fleetwood-Smith, A. F. Kippax, B. J. Barnett and H. T. Ebeling.

EVERYTHING PEACEFUL

Everything was peaceful when Woodfull was accompanied to the wicket by his Victorian colleague, Ponsford, to open the innings for Australia after the visiting captain had beaten Walters in the spin of the coin.

There was a pleasing absence of harrowing as the two men walked to the crease and commenced the first Test match of the tour. For 20 minutes the opening batsmen played the bowling with confidence but after the score had reached 77 runs the English bowlers met with their first success.

Kenneth Farnes, the former Cambridge University player, caused the dismissal of Ponsford when the bats-

MCCABE IN FORM.

Stanley McCabe, the best all rounder in the team, had taken Bradman's place and he quickly settled down to master the bowling. He had Darling as his partner when Brown left, but the newcomer remained to see another seven runs added before leaving. He was bowled by Verity by a ball which kept very low and came off fast from the pitch. He had only made four and the total stood at 153 for five.

Australia's second best all rounder, Chipperfield, became associated with McCabe in a valuable partnership which remained unbroken at tea. The pair had then taken the score from 153 to 206. McCabe had just reached the 50 mark and Chipperfield had made 16.

Because the light was bad, the innings was ended almost immediately after resumption. At the close of play the score was 207 for five wickets.

LEAGUE TENNIS.

C.R.C. STILL SWEEPING ALL BEFORE THEM

ANOTHER SMASHING VICTORY IN THE "C" DIVISION

K.C.C. HAVE A CLOSE CALL

Overnight rain made play impossible for all but four matches in the "C" Division of the tennis league yesterday. Results were as expected.

The Chinese Recreation Club, chief bidders for the championship, were again in irresistible form at Soekunpo, where they out-played the I.R.C., losing only half a set in nine.

The Kowloon Cricket Club, last year's runners-up, just snatched a win on the Kowloon Bowling Green Club courts, everything depending on the last set between Capell and Collins and Armstrong and Randle. The K.C.C. pair snatched half a point, and thus won the match for the visitors.

Full scores follow.

INDIAN R.C. v. CHINESE R.C.

Visiting Soekunpo, the Chinese Recreation Club defeated the Indian Recreation Club by a convincing margin, winning by 8½ sets to 2.

Scores: Firdos Khan and M. A. Khan (Indian R.C.) lost to W. K. Cheung and H. M. Lee 1-6; lost to W. M. Cheung and T. H. Woo 1-6; lost to B. C. Leung and T. W. Lau 3-7.

Indian R.C. lost to Cheung and Lee 2-6; lost to Cheung and Woo 5-7; tied with Leung and Lau 6-6. A. J. Saffell and A. R. H. Esmail (Indian R.C.) lost to Cheung and Lee 3-6; lost to Cheung and Woo 3-6; lost to Cheung and Lau 1-6.

UNIVERSITY v. CIVIL SERVICE.

Playing on the home courts, the University defeated the Civil Service Cricket Club by 5½ sets to 3½.

Scores: A. T. Lee and Mahan Singh (University) lost to J. A. Bendall and G. H. Fowler 3-6; beat W. T. Edge and Bailey 6-3; beat J. G. Pilcher and Fisher 6-2.

G. O. Lo and Fletcher (University) lost to Bendall and Fowler 4-6; beat Edge and Bailey 6-1; beat Pilcher and Fisher 6-1. M. C. Yatskin and K. T. Kwik (University) lost to Bendall and Fowler 1-6; beat Edge and Bailey 6-4; tied with Pilcher and Fisher 6-6.

K.B.G.C. v. K.C.C.

Playing at the Kowloon Bowling Green Club yesterday, the Kowloon Cricket Club's tennis string gained a narrow victory over the home men, the results being as follows:

T. Armstrong and S. Randle (K.B.G.C.) beat F. Broadbridge and Crawford 6-2, drew with W. Gittins and F. S. Smith, drew with Collins and Campbell 6-6.

J. L. Turner and J. T. Bows (K.B.G.C.) beat Broadbridge and Crawford 6-4, beat Gittins and Smith 6-2, lost to Collins and Campbell 8-6.

D. W. Waterson and W. A. Bland (K.B.G.C.) lost to Broadbridge and Crawford 6-4; lost to Gittins and Smith 3-6; lost to Collins and Campbell 6-6.

C.B.A. v. K.D.R.C.

By 5½ points to 3½ the Central British asserted their superiority on their own ground against the visiting Kowloon Dock Recreation Club yesterday. Scores:

Halford and Gurevitch (C.B.A.) beat J. P. White and G. White 6-0, drew with Hase and Pearson, lost to Millard and Duncan 4-6.

Angus and Ferguson (C.B.A.) beat White and White 6-2, beat Hase and Pearson 6-0, lost to Millard and Duncan 4-6.

Blyth and Whitley (C.B.A.) beat White and White 6-3, beat Hase and Pearson 6-3, lost to Millard and Duncan 4-6.

LAWN BOWLS

It was inadvertently stated during the week that Dr. V. N. Alenza had beaten W. Gill. Actually Gill won by 21 shots to 17.

The match on Tuesday next between W. W. Hirst and G. J. Tatchi against W. K. Way and A. S. Gomes has been transferred from the Kowloon Bowling Green Club to the Club de Recreo green.

A re-arrangement is necessary in the singles match between J. Pooler and A. F. Paul, who were to play on Thursday next. This game was postponed from last Thursday owing to the rain, and has been fixed for Monday evening.

The other matches postponed from last Thursday will be played off next Thursday.

GERMANY & FRANCE ALL SQUARE

after losing the first two sets to love.

This victory gave Italy the match against Switzerland, the home players having previously won the opening singles encounters.

To-day's doubles was remarkable. Completely outplayed, Taroni and Quintavalle lost the first set 6-0, and the second by the same score. Then when a straight sets win for the Swiss couple appeared inevitable, the Italians recovered and won the next three sets with the loss of ten games.

Reuter cabled the following scores:

V. Taroni and Quintavalle (Italy) beat Aeschlimann and Steiner (Switzerland) 0-6, 0-0, 6-3, 6-3, 6-4.

CHINA'S BUSINESS.

MR. LI MING ARRIVES
IN LONDON

London, June 8.
Mr. Li Ming, whose daughter,
Bessie, will marry the son of Dr.
Alfred Sze next month, arrived in London yesterday. He will remain in England for a month and a half, for he has plenty of business to attend to, apart from the marriage of his daughter.

He is anxious to stimulate British interest in China politically and economically. He will see Sir Harry McGowan and Sir Victor Sassoon to-day. He will have interviews with many other leading British business men whose connections are large in the Far East, including Sir Roderick Jones, chairman of Reuters.

Mr. Li Ming spent four days in New York and addressed the Chinese Society in the most frank terms on Chinese conditions. He spoke, too, of China's views on the silver problem.

In conversation with leading bankers, who are much worried over the Securities Act, compelling a difficult reconstitution of their business, he explained China's position in respect of silver.

Meanwhile, in London, Mr. Wu Lien-teh, one of the Chinese investigators in Europe, will leave for Shanghai to-day and board s.s.
Ganga in Venice on June 13.—

FRENCH LOTTERY.

TO FINANCE EXPOSITION IN PARIS IN 1937

Paris, June 8.
Indicative of the new popularity in France of financing public projects by lottery schemes, the Chamber to-day approved a measure by which the 1937 Paris Exposition will be financed by this means.

The readiness with which the Chamber approved the project is due chiefly to the success the Government encountered in floating its 1933 lottery of one billion francs and the presently unrestricted 1934 lottery.

At a time when increased taxation is financially and politically impractical, the Government has found the lottery an immensely successful means of raising funds with relative painlessness, and most of the public ignores the moral reasons which banned such schemes in France for nearly a hundred years.

Provided the Senate approves, a lottery will now be utilized by the City of Paris, which expects to raise in 1936 at least 700 millions. Of this sum 235 millions will be reserved to defray costs of staging the elaborate 1937 Exposition, among whose projects are a permanent State and also a municipal museum. The balance of 415 millions will go to the winners, except for costs of the lottery itself.

Liberal Attitude.

The depression has caused a much more liberal attitude towards State-operated gambling. It is foreseen now that various municipalities may soon ask Parliament also to approve various lottery schemes to finance local improvements, to reduce unemployment.

As soon as the Senate approves the measure, the municipality will issue short term bonds in anticipation of its profits, and will also receive a State subsidy of 15 millions, later to be repaid from the lottery.

Tickets for the "Exposition Lottery" will be sold concurrently with the State Lottery—which it is expected will still be flourishing in 1936—as the Government has no reasons to fear competition. It has seasonal difficulties in floating its bonds for refinancing, but the traditionally prudent Frenchman has proved unexpectedly eager to risk 100 francs to win 5 millions, or one of the lesser prizes.

CINEMA SCREENINGS

NOTES SUPPLIED BY THE THEATRES

A distinctly European atmosphere pervades "By Candlelight," Universal's sophisticated comedy which comes to the King's Theatre on Sunday. With Ellen Landi and Paul Lukas in starring roles. The picture is based on Steffler Geyer's play of the same name which played a long engagement at Prince of Wales Theatre in London. There are many scenes aboard a train travelling from Vienna to Monte Carlo, with the quint short cars and distinctive equipment which is part of European railroads. It is on this train that the butler and maid masquerade as members of the nobility, and an acquaintance which brings about hilarious complications when the two carry on their romance in the apartment of the butler's titled master. Much of the action of the story takes place in the Prince's luxurious apartments in Vienna and Monte Carlo, and there are scenes at the famous gambling casino of the latter city, where jealous husbands increase the intensity of decidedly awkward situations. As a distinct change from the atmosphere of royalty, there are sequences at an Austrian country fair where the romance of the masquerading servants proceeds apace under the influence of sparkling wine. "By Candlelight" was directed by James Whale, and the cast appearing in support of Miss Landi and Lukas includes Nita Asher, Esther Ralston, Lawrence Grant and Dorothy Reiver.

"Six of a Kind"

Charlie Ruggles, Mary Boland, W. C. Fields, Allison Skipworth and George Burns and Gracie Allen, Paramount's leading comedians, are responsible for the funniest picture of the season, "Six of a Kind." The comedy commencing to-morrow at the Alhambra Theatre. This hilarious concoction was directed by Leo McCarey, the man who directed "Kid From Spain" and the Marx Brothers' latest picture, "Monkey Business." The screen play was written by Walter De Leon and Harry Ruskin. The picture is an adaptation of an original story by Douglas MacLean, former silent screen comedian, now a producer at the Paramount studios, and Keene T. Johnson. It contains the ridiculous adventures which overtake two simple souls who start out on their second honeymoon. After twenty years of happily married life, Ruggles and Mary Boland start on their second honeymoon. To defray expenses, the adventures, unknown to Ruggles, are another route to drive with them, and Burns and Allen with a large item-hunter answer the ad. As an employee of a bank, Ruggles innocently gets mixed up in a bank swindle, and as if that wasn't enough trouble, he has the valuable stock of a defunct gold mine thrown in his lap. Then, with George Burns and Gracie Allen throwing laughs in his way all along, and with W. C. Fields and Allison Skipworth waiting at the end of their journey, his second honeymoon turns into a complicated mixture of laughs and troubles.

"Midnight Club"

Clive Brook, suave gentleman of the screen's upper-world; George Raft, sinister "black snake," so named by members of the underworld; and these two combine their talents to make a swift-moving tale of E. Phillips Oppenheim's famous story, "Midnight Club," showing at the King's Theatre. Allison Skipworth and Helen Yinson are also featured in the cast. It is a highly dramatic story of a band of London's society jewel-thieves. For once, Raft is on the side of the law, and Brook is this time the leader of the thieves, imperturbable as ever, a cool, fascinating character. For excitement and thrills, "Midnight Club" is a best bet. With a perfect cast, all the way down the line. It includes such splendid trouper as Sir Stirling, Alan Mowbray and Ferdinand Gottschalk. The cast is admirable, the story one of Oppenheim's best, and the film's pace all that could be wished for.

"Broadway Thru A Keyhole"

Texas Guinan, night club queen who has vanquished the world's wits on the wise-cracking battlefields, play herself in "Broadway Thru A Keyhole," the spicy musical story written by Walter Mitchell and showing at the Oriental Theatre on Sunday, Monday and Tuesday. Some of the action in this United Artists release produced by Joseph M. Schenck and Darryl F. Zanuck's 20th Century Pictures, takes place in the very night clubs over which the noted entertainer actually presided.

LEAVES FOR FRANCE.

BELLIOS PRESENTATION TO MISS H. F. SKINNER

Yesterday morning, the staff and students of the Bellios Girls' School assembled to bid farewell to Miss Skinner who has been with them for nearly ten years. She was appointed in May, 1914, and, up to the year 1921, acted as Assistant Mistress at the Peak School and Queen's College, being temporarily in charge of the school during 1916. She was in charge of the Kowloon Junior School from 1921, until appointed as Headmistress of Bellios in 1924.

As a parting remembrance, the school presented Miss Skinner with an illuminated address. Miss Leung read the address in Chinese and Mrs. Thomson read the English translation.

In acknowledging their gift, Miss Skinner said, "I wish to thank you so much for this beautiful book. I wish I deserved one hundredth part of the nice things you have said about me and I want to thank you all for the happiness you have given me here at Bellios."

"Remember to make happiness the keynote of your lives," she said to the girls. "The joy of service, the joy of work, the joy of giving, and of helping are really the only worthwhile things. I wish to congratulate the Girl Guides of Bellios on their winning the Prince of Wales' Banner four times out of seven—a record for the school. It is an honour of which the school is justly proud."

"Though I shall be far away, the life and activities of the school will always hold a very warm corner in my heart and I shall carry away with me stores of happy memories of my life here at Bellios."

On Thursday evening, the staff of the school gave a Chinese dinner to Miss Skinner in the school hall. There will be a large crowd of friends and pupils to see Miss Skinner off to-morrow evening.

Mrs. Patricia Stark, formerly Headmistress of the Peak School, has been appointed to take charge of the Bellios School from Monday morning.

into one of the featured roles of the famous comedy "The Show-Off," which is showing at the Alhambra Theatre. For Miss Blandick, now of the screen, played the same role in the same play on the London stage for an entire season. As the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studio, where the picture version was produced, she joined a cast headed by Spencer Tracy, and Madge Evans, as his wife. Previously, in London, she had played with other stars in the same play. "The Show-Off" is one of the funniest and most successful plays in the history of the modern theatre. Written by George Kelly, it was a smash hit from the moment of its first presentation in New York, and other stars in the cast have been produced on the stage in virtually every city in the United States and England. It is a sparkling vehicle for the introduction of a new screen team, Tracy and Miss Evans. Both had reached to fame in the past eighteen months, and each has been voted the most popular player in films. Their teaming is not only a master stroke of showmanship; it has given the screen a brilliant new combination.

"Looking for Trouble"

"Looking for Trouble," the newest 20th Century Picture starring Spencer Tracy which is showing at the Queen's Theatre offers some of the most definitely thrilling and entertaining fare. The story deals with a little known phase of life—that of the professional "trouble shooter," the telephone lineman whose business it is to see that the wire kept clear through blizzard, fire, storm or earthquake. Spencer Tracy, cast as foreman of a group of these adventurous men who brave every calamity of nature so that communication between man and man may not be interrupted, brings to the portrayal of his role a virility which makes it one of the most convincing parts he has ever played on the screen. Jack Oakie, who plays his assistant, is responsible for much of the sparkling humour which kept last night's audience chuckling with merriment. These two trouble shooters also prove themselves as adept at the gentler art of making love as they are at the stern task of battling the elements and the "emotional interludes" of Tracy who is paired off with Constance Cummings, Judge, form some of the most interesting sequences in this highly diverting film. "Looking for Trouble" is a Joseph M. Schenck-Darryl F. Zanuck presentation and is released by United Artists.

Tooth and gums receive scientific protection when Squibb's Dental Cream guards the Danger Line.

Your teeth should be a source of joy to you—not of constant fear. Pyorrhea, bleeding gums and decay are genuine threats. Along the Danger Line, where tooth meet gums, tiny crawlers trap food particles which ferment and form GERM ACID, a direct cause of tooth decay and gum irritation. But Squibb's
Dental Cream, an ANTACID, makes Germ
Acid harmless by counteracting it. Squibb's also cleans perfectly without grit, and prevents bleeding gums because it contains no irritating substances. Use Squibb's Dental Cream, see your dentist twice year . . . and

MARCUS SHOW HERE

RECORD-SHATTERING BOOKING

The Marcus Show, numbering almost seventy persons—chiefly of the feminine gender, five dogs—mostly Pomeranians, several hundred tons of scenery, costumes and electrical equipment passed down the gang-plank of the Tatsuta Maru after the N.Y.K. liner docked at Kowloon last evening. The entire company repaired to the Peninsula hotel where the members will stay during the short run at the Queen's which is scheduled to open to-morrow matinee with the first of three productions, "La Vie Parée."

The big troupe came from Shanghai where a six weeks' engagement was concluded Tuesday. Shanghai and Tokyo are the only two cities in the Orient that have been visited since the show departed from San Francisco early in February.

To-day the performers will recover from their "sea-legs," with a dress rehearsal to-night. Immediately on arrival of the ship a large crew was put to work unloading the wealth of paraphernalia required for the stage performances. By midnight stage hands were erecting the scenery and connecting lighting equipment on the Queen's stage.

The largest advance booking in the history of Hongkong was reported by the theatre management late yesterday. This is in line with the experience of the company at Tokyo and Japan, according to Charles Hugo, managing director of the Oriental, and impresario of the "round-the-world" tour of the Marcus Show.

The name of Dr. Helene Lill Canaval, 180 The Park, has been added to the list of medical practitioners. She is a Licentiate in Medicine, Surgery and Midwifery of the Apothecaries Society of London.

POPULARITY OF RAYON

WORLD INCREASE IN PRODUCTION

New York, June 8. According to the Textile Organon published by Tubize, the 1933 world production of rayon yarns totalled 659,000,000 pounds, compared with 530,000,000 pounds in 1932.

Of this quantity, the United States produced 208 millions, compared with 136 millions, Japan 100 millions as compared with 71 millions, England 84 compared with 70, Italy 82 compared with 70, Germany 69 millions compared with 62 millions, France 66 compared with 54 and other countries, 71 millions as against 68 in 1932.

Organon estimates that current stock in the hands of American producers do not exceed five weeks' supply, which is not regarded as excessively high, although stocks at the end of 1933 were only two and a half weeks' supply.

AGRICULTURAL ADJUSTMENT DANGERS OF TOO BIG PRICE RISE

New York, June 8. An increase of nearly ten million acres in the 1935 cotton area is contemplated, state reports suggesting that officials of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration are at present working out the cotton control programme for next season's crop.

The increase is being considered with a view to preventing any undue price advance, which would be calculated to promote foreign production.—Reuter.
